'Chairman Kim Jong Il will always be with our people'

Choe Ryong Hae, chairman of the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly of the DPRK, delivers memorial address at national memorial service

"Chairman Kim Jong Il will always be with us and a powerful socialist country desired by him will surely be built as there is the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un. This is the revolutionary faith cherished by the Korean people through the last decade-long struggle," said Choe Ryong Hae, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, first vice-president of the State Affairs Commission of the DPRK and chairman of the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly of the DPRK, in an address made at the national memorial service commemorating the 10th anniversary of the death of Chairman Kim Jong Il on Friday.

Choe Ryong Hae in his address said that the revolutionary life of Kim Jong Il is the brilliant one of an outstanding leader and peerless patriot who firmly defended the destinies of the country and the people and put socialist Korea on the position of a dignified powerful country by covering the tough untrodden path of history.

Kim Jong Il is the eternal Sun of the people who will always live in the hearts of the people for his sacred revolutionary life dedicated to the country and the nation, the times and humankind and his great revolutionary exploits, the speaker noted, and went on:

It is one of the immortal feats performed by him before the history that he firmly defended the socialist country of Juche founded and glorified by President Kim Il Sung.

The august name of Kim Jong Il is deeply carved, together with the immortal august name of Kim Il Sung, on the course of brilliant victories of the DPRK which has defended its rights and interests as a sovereign state and the dignity of socialism, smashing all the arbitrary practices, interference and aggression moves of big powers.

There were many famous statesmen and strategists in the world, but Kim Jong Il is the only great man of the century and legendary hero as he saved the country, nation and socialism, frustrating the unprecedented pressure and blockade in the fight against the imperialist allied forces whose territories, populations and economic and military capabilities are incomparably greater.

He created a history of victory of war in the one and only country on the planet that has been exposed to the unprecedented political and military pressure and economic sanctions for over half a century and honourably defended the DPRK, the socialist homeland of Juche. His personality as a peerlessly great man is shining brilliantly in the hearts of the Korean people as a national hero and a symbol of the victory of socialism.

He turned the DPRK into a dignified power by performing epoch-making miracles in building a thriving nation.

It is one of Kim Jong Il's immortal historic feats that he turned the DPRK into a single-mindedly united politico-ideological power.

He formulated the revolutionary ideas of President Kim Il Sung as Kimilsungism and set the idea of modelling the whole society on Kimilsungism as the WPK's supreme programme. This was a turning point in building an invincible party united with one thought and purpose and in opening up a new age of single-minded unity.

The single-mindedly united DPRK which advances with one goal and one purpose and at one pace emerged for the first time in history and fully displayed its wonderful features and inexhaustible strength thanks to Chairman Kim Jong Il.

He was an iron-willed brilliant commander who steered the trend of history while holding the formidable enemies at bay amid the upheavals of the times. He was also a tender-hearted man who was thoughtful of the people's pains and shed lots of tears and a benevolent father who loved young people and children of the country very much.

Another of his undying historic feats is that he consolidated the potentials for the DPRK's independent development.

Always cherishing the noble intention and strong will of the President who held high the banner of self-reliance in the earliest period of nation-building and on the ruins after the war, he put his heart and soul into building up the self-reliant defence capability and the solid foundation for the self-supporting economy.

Setting it as the supreme task of the nation to reunify Korea, he made crucial decisions in succession to put an end to the tragedy of national division, thus continuously inspiring the enthusiasm for national reunification. He also smashed all challenges and obstructive moves by anti-reunification forces and opened up a new era of independent reunification advancing with the ideal of By Our Nation Itself under the uplifted banner of the three charters for national reunification.

A world-renowned elder statesman, he set forth the strategy and tactics for realizing global independence and conducted energetic external activities for independence against imperialism and for socialism, world peace and friendship and solidarity among the peoples, thus considerably raising the international prestige and influence of the DPRK and making a great contribution to the accomplishment of the cause of independence for humankind.

His sacred revolutionary career the Korean people more deeply keep in their hearts with the passage of the time is an immortal biography of the greatest leader and the greatest man in human history and a precious textbook of life and struggle to be always read by anyone who wants to be guided by justice, truth and patriotism.

To carry on the long journey of the revolution to the end generation after generation, the Chairman put forward the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un, boundlessly revered and absolutely trusted by all the Party members, other people and service personnel of the People's Army, as the leader of the Juche revolution and entrusted the future and the destiny of the socialist country and its people to him. After the demise of the Chairman, the biggest loss to the nation, the Korean people bade their last farewell to him, grieving over his death in tears, but they have never thought that he is not with them over the past decade.

Our nation and state are as ever the great Kim Il Sung's nation and Kim Jong Il's Korea and all of us are the descendants of Kim Il Sung and soldiers and disciples of Kim Jong Il.

No matter how much water may flow under the bridge and how frequently a generation may be replaced by another, we should always keep in our hearts the beaming images of Kim Il Sung and Kim Jong Il and remain faithful to the revolutionary cause of the great leaders to the end.

The cause of building a powerful socialist country, the revolutionary cause of Juche associated with the whole life of Kim Jong Il, will certainly be accomplished as the valuable revolutionary legacy bequeathed by him shines as the eternal treasure and there is the tested guidance of the WPK.

Choe Ryong Hae called on all the Korean people to wage a dynamic struggle for a brilliant new victory of socialism and steady advance of the Juche revolution under the leadership of Kim Jong Un, holding Kim Jong Il in high esteem as the eternal Sun of Juche.

Chairman Kim Jong Il lives in the hearts of people

Laying foundation for building powerful socialist nation

By Pang Un Ju PT

It has been ten years since Chairman Kim Jong Il, father of the nation, passed away.

At this moment, when all the Korean people's yearning for Chairman Kim Jong Il across the country is getting intense, they look back upon the patriotic devotion of him, who provided an eternal cornerstone for building a powerful socialist country and opened up a bright future of Juche Korea.

The Chairman was a great thinker and theoretician who provided the ideological and theoretical asset for the eternal victory of the DPRK by dint of his outstanding wisdom and scientific insight.

He enriched the Juche idea, the revolutionary idea of President Kim Il Sung, into the sole guiding ideology of the Workers' Party of Korea through his energetic ideological and theoretical activities and, on the basis of it, gave perfect answers to theoretical and practical issues arising in all fields of building the Party, the state, revolutionary armed forces, the economy and culture.

He also correctly clarified the people's aspirations and the requirements of the developing revolution in his original ideas and theories such as the theory of a powerful socialist nation building, the line of economic construction in the Songun era, the line of attaching importance to science and technology and the ideas and theories on self-reliance and the campaign to break through the cutting edge in the new century.

Thanks to his revolutionary and scientific ideas and lines, Korean socialism could demonstrate its true vitality while overcoming all unprecedented trials.

With his energetic Songun revolutionary leadership, the Chairman built up the inexhaustible military capability to safeguard the people's dignity and happiness.

The Chairman also provided a solid foundation of the self-supporting economy while making field guidance tours day and night.

At the time when the country suffered worst difficulties, he invested valuable funds into CNC to kindle the flames of the campaign to break through the cutting edge across the country. Under his energetic leadership, a foundation was laid for the knowledge-based economy supported by the cutting-edge industry and all the farmland of the country was rearranged.

His energetic guidance brought about great changes across the country as he mapped out bold plans for operations and found ways to work miracles at construction sites of industrial establishments and elsewhere.

Chairman Kim Jong Il, great leader of the Korean people.

December a permanent memorial to great father who dedicated his all to people

Ri Kyong Rim

Ten years have passed since the day in December 2011 when all the nation cried in bitter grief over the death of Chairman Kim Jong Il, the father of the nation.

December has become the month of remembrance over the past 10 years.

Every December the Korean people sing with immense yearning for Chairman Kim Jong Il who burned himself like the candle for them all his life that his feats, which are so spectacular as to form a sea if they are spread and reach the sky when piled up, boil down to one thing: people, when they are put together.

As they sing, the Chairman adopted "The people are my God" as his lifelong maxim and continued his long journey for the people.

If there is anything that is omnipotent, it is not God, but the people and there can be the country and homeland as there are the people—this was his view on the people and creed of patriotism.

To provide the people with plentiful and cultured life, he visited everywhere they worked and lived even on holidays, rest days and birthdays, taking some naps and balls of rice during the whole period of his revolutionary leadership.

Under his energetic guidance the country's farmland was realigned, the flames of an industrial revolution in the new century were burned intensely, modern heavy and light industry factories built and old ones refashioned in line with the requirements of the new century.

The footprint of his on-the-spot guidance was also left on many monumental structures, industrial establishments and cultural and pleasure grounds, including such hydropower stations as the Anbyon Youth Power Station, Pyongyang-Hyangsan tourist motorway and Youth Hero Motorway, the Kwangmyongsong Salt Works, gravity-fed waterways, the settling reservoir for water supply of the February 8 Vinalon Complex, the branch factory of the Ryongsong Machine Complex, Hamhung Knitwear Factory, Hungnam Leather Shoes Factory, Mts Kuwol and Chilbo and Ryongmun Cavern which had been developed into cultural recreation grounds for the people.

He visited the Amusement Park of Kaeson Youth Park in the biting cold of December in 2011 and said he was happy to hear that the people enjoyed riding its facilities. And on his visit to the Kwangbok Area Supermarket in the last days of his life he said he felt warm even in cold winter to see it full of commodities, he was most delighted when he had done something for the people and he found his happiness and pleasure in those of the people.

"When I faced the novel I had completed with great efforts again, I felt guilty, rather than pleasure, of having failed to depict the great personality traits of the Chairman more impressively and it weighed on me," said writer Paek Nam Ryong, author of popular novel "Field Train" of the cycle of novels "Immortal Guidance" on the theme of the untiring efforts of the Chairman who continued forced march on train of his field inspection tour to meet the people, in his notes for story writing.

The history of his love for the people is being carried forward by the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un today.

The Korean people enjoy tangible benefits of his politics of love and trust, the politics of making devoted, selfless efforts for the good of the people, paying primary attention to their life and taking warm care of all people everywhere at all times and under any conditions and environment, and under his loving care they redouble their efforts to fulfill the desire of the Chairman to build a powerful country.

Peerlessly great man defends country's destiny under banner of Songun

By Han Kwi Hun PT

Songun makes people recollect Chairman Kim Jong Il with deep emotion. Because the word epitomizes the undying exploits performed by the Chairman for the country and people. The periods of the Arduous March and forced march, when the DPRK experienced the severest trials in the 1990s, were the toughest and hardest for the country and people and the days of life-and-death struggle. At the time when the whole country writhed in grief after the unexpected loss of President Kim Il Sung, the economy of the country suffered hardships due to the heinous moves of the imperialists, the people got hard pressed and the world gazed at the DPRK holding their breath. Upholding the banner of Songun, the Chairman resolutely set out on the Arduous March and forced march leading the Korean people at the crossroads of continued independent life and reduction to slavery of the imperialists. In retrospect, since he inspected the Dwarf Pine Post in January 1995, he had always toured the frontline of the revolution, the forward command posts covered with camouflage nets, barracks of units of the People's Army and posts on windy heights. A writer wrote in his article in the period of the Arduous March and forced march as follows:

"...Before writing a work I have ever climbed one forward command post on the western front. ...Our military car ran gaspingly to the summit of a steep height along the road stretching upwards almost in a straight line. The slope was so steep that my body leaned backward severely and my apprehensions grew gradually as if the car slipped to fall down to giddy cliff. ...I was really indignant at the front commanding officers who had the Chairman on this rugged road." So many tearful stories were engraved in the Chairman's arduous journey to the front. Stories about his climbing the steep cliffs of Mt Osong by pushing his car to meet his beloved soldiers and visiting Cho Island through giant waves are part of many stories which came into being on his journey of Songun. Saying that he felt at ease and better than living in luxury when he sweated and made a forced march for his soldiers and good people, Kim Jong Il endlessly made the long journey of Songun. His every step on his inspection tours served as nutrients in training service personnel to be brave warriors and cornerstones supporting the invincible military power. Indeed, Chairman Kim Jong Il defended the socialism of Juche with honour overcoming hardships and trials and brought about a brilliant victory holding aloft the banner of Songun. These are the immortal feats that will go down in history forever.

A day of great devotion

February 16 1999 was the 57th birthday of Chairman Kim Jong Il and also lunar New Year's Day. That day the Chairman sat at the dinner table together with officials when it was dark. They were surprised to see such a plain dinner table on which there were only a few potato dishes. As if he read their mind, he laughed heartily, saying that he spent with soldiers that day, too, and that the day spent for soldiers and the people was just his holiday. He then suggested them to discuss the ways to bring about a revolution in potato farming and improve the people's dietary life while tasting the potato foods. As a result, that day's evening meal became an occasion to discuss the people's dietary life.

To provide the people with good quality noodles

On a March day in 1965, a waitress at the Okryu Restaurant was surprised to see Kim Jong Il entering the restaurant in modest attire. He said smilingly that he was observed by her, though he tried to come in unnoticed. He then went into a general dining hall and sat in a corner. Handing a ticket he bought at the ticket window over to the young waitress, he said he was going to have noodles with other diners. She was at a loss, standing there anxiously, but brought him the same noodles as those served to ordinary diners. After confirming that his pasta was the same as those of his neighbours, he told the waitress that was good enough and he felt relieved and asked her to ensure the quality of noodles at that level all the time. And then he left there.

Kumyangang Power Station Unit 2 overfulfilled its annual production plan.

The power station boosted power generation by introducing several technical innovation plans.

It pushed ahead with a project for increasing the stability of its automation and integrated power control systems to provide a guarantee for producing a great deal of electricity with a less quantity of water and to raise the operational rate of generators.

A series of measures taken by WPK for people in 2021

HONG KWANG NAM / THE PYONGYANG TIMES

Top: Dairy products and nourishing foods are regularly supplied to children. Above: Working people take great delight in receiving new houses gratis.

The measures taken by the WPK for the people invariably in the past and present offer great encouragement to the Korean people who are now out for implementing the five-year plan.

By Ri Sung Ik PT

The Second Plenary Meeting of the Eighth Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea was held in February, drawing great interest and concern of all the Party members and other Korean people who turned out for a new revolutionary advance to implement the fighting programme set forth by the Eighth Congress of the WPK.

At the meeting the Party Central Committee expressed its determination and will to take important measures to push ahead with economic construction and provide the people with more stable and improved living conditions.

As the construction of dwelling houses is an important undertaking to make people lead a stable and cultured life, the meeting discussed the plan for building 10 000 flats in Pyongyang this year as an important agenda item.

Accordingly, a groundbreaking ceremony of the project for building 10 000 flats in Pyongyang took place in the Songsin and Songhwa area of Sadong District, Pyongyang.

The respected Comrade

Kim Jong Un attended it and made a speech.

Three days later, on March 26, WPK General Secretary Kim Jong Un proposed a plan for building a terraced houses district along the riverbanks near the Pothong Gate and visited the construction site again in less than a week to give detailed tasks on different matters for the construction.

The construction of apartment houses for 800 families in the Pothong Riverside Terraced Houses District was another construction project for the people independent from the construction project of 10 000 flats in Pyongyang.

Other large housing development projects were also undertaken across the country, including the third-stage reconstruction of the City of Samjiyon.

In June, the Third Plenary Meeting of the Eighth WPK Central Committee was held.

At the meeting the General Secretary issued a special order that he personally inked with sincerity to make even a small contribution to stabilizing the people's living.

On August 5, the Central Military Commission of the WPK issued an order to convene an emergency enlarged meeting of the South Hamgyong Provincial Military Commission of the Workers' Party of Korea for relief operation in the areas afflicted by torrential rain and flood and necessary related instructions.

General Secretary Kim Jong Un saw that major materials needed for the rehabilitation campaign were urgently supplied from the state reserves and gave an order to offer a powerful national material and financial support to South Hamgyong Province.

Thanks to these immediate and strong measures, flood victims moved into new homes in the disaster-stricken areas of Sinhung, Hongwon and Yonggwang counties and Hamhung City after only two months.

The Third Enlarged Meeting of the Political Bureau of the Eighth Central Committee of the WPK in September also discussed as important agenda items the issues related to the people's living.

The measures taken by the WPK for the people invariably in the past and present offer great encouragement to the Korean people who are now out for implementing the five-year plan.

Consumer goods increased in kinds

By Yun Ki Song PT

This year, the DPRK put more efforts into stabilizing and improving the people's livelihood.

Many foodstuff factories and light industry factories produced new consumer goods preserving their characters by relying on domestic raw and other materials and raised the quality of products a step higher.

These goods are winning great favour with users.

Those, who have tasted Pommaji-brand products of the Pyongyang Condiments Factory, say that they can feel the mood of spring at the mere mention of the brand name.

The factory producing various kinds of condiments including soy sauce, oil and seasonings is well-known among the people. Ri Kun Il, manager of the factory, said that it was the result of the efforts to increase the varieties of products and improve their quality upholding the decisions of the second and third plenary meetings of the Eighth Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea.

A c h i m h a e - b r a n d foodstuffs of the Songyong

General Foodstuff Factory are also enjoying growing popularity.

The factory turns out over 130 kinds of foodstuffs including breads, processed meats and drinks.

The Ryuwon Footwear Factory, which was awarded diplomas and medals in several exhibitions, developed light and convenient trainers that suit the likings of customers this year by putting shoe designs and designing methods on a scientific basis.

Among trainers, some of them received the December 15 Medal of Quality, the top quality medal in the DPRK.

This year, many exhibitions of consumer goods were held in the DPRK, including the August 3 consumer goods exhibition.

The exhibitions, which were held in Pyongyang and Kangwon, Ryanggang and other provinces, aimed to further improve the people's living standards by raising quality and increasing the varieties of consumer goods.

They achieved the expected success since they put on display many useful and quality consumer goods produced.

The consumer goods exhibition in Ryanggang Province was appreciated as the Paektusan Blueberry-processing Factory, Chongbong General Foodstuff Factory and Hyesan Bag Factory made achievements in production and improvement of the quality of consumer goods.

Yogurt, which Kapsan County produced itself, drew the attention of the people for its good taste and quality, while the Chongbong General Foodstuff Factory and Hyesan local source processing company aroused the interest of customers with their various foodstuffs.

South Hwanghae Province notches up successes by concentrating efforts on positively tapping and using local materials and sources.

Consumer goods production units of city and county people's committees in the province and provincial-level enterprises and factories produced over 1 200 kinds of daily necessities.

Pak Yong Ok, vice-minister of Light Industry, said that the exhibition remarkably aroused the competitive enthusiasm of light industry factories and each production unit to produce famous goods.

Premier Kim inspects major industrial establishments

KCNA

Premier Kim Tok Hun, who is also member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and vice-president of the State Affairs Commission of the DPRK, inspected factories and enterprises in major fields of the national economy.

Making the rounds of the blast furnace workshop, the steel workshop and other places of the Hwanghae Iron and Steel Complex, he encouraged the officials and workers who are working hard to bring about an upsurge in production.

He stressed the need to hit the iron production target by scrupulously improving the technical management of production processes to shorten the melting time and expanding the production capacity in a far-sighted way.

At the Namhung Youth Chemical Complex he called for achieving a stable and steady increase in the production of fertilizer. And at the Anju Insulator Factory he referred to the need to produce and supply much more insulating materials.

The field consultative meetings discussed the issues of firmly cementing material and technical foundations for increasing iron and steel production, producing and supplying enough fertilizer needed for next year's farming, improving the quality of insulating materials and increasing the ranks of technicians and skilled workers and expanding the production capacity.

Unique teaching methods draw wide attention

By Kim Rye Yong PT

New teaching contents and methods devised and applied by Sonjuk Senior Middle School in Kaesong City are now a focus of attention.

“Every teacher is concerned about how to combine theory and practice in education. In the past we tried to solve the problem by getting students to do lots of experiments and practical training while attending lessons on theories, but the outcome was unsatisfactory,” recalled Kwak Sim, principal of the school.

Such a method was unable to remove space-time limitations in developing students’ cognitive, application and practical abilities, she said.

Teachers of the school racked their brains to find out a solution, given that it was impossible to prolong lessons of each subject, and finally found a way.

It was not a hidebound teaching method dealing with only scientific laws and theories, but a method which combines like a comprehensive book the phenomena occurring and experience and lessons gained and learned in everyday life to suit the psychology of students who are full of dreams and who have rich imagination.

They worked out a teaching method geared to helping students understand the contents of such natural science subjects as mathematics and physics in connection with such subjects as history, geography and literature and even music and sports.

“Originally, we feared we could fail to ensure the consistency of teaching. But the result of the trial was better than what we had expected.

RYU KWANG HYOK / THE PYONGYANG TIMES

Teachers hold a seminar to improve teaching methods at Sonjuk Senior Middle School in Kaesong.

Students easily understood and memorized the contents of lessons. Moreover, it removed students’ partiality to and fear of some subjects and enabled them to acquire a wide range of knowledge,” said the principal.

The method made lessons not a simple period of acquiring knowledge but a course of cognition and application that fires students with the fresh zeal for learning and the spirit of inquiry.

It was posted on the homepage of the Education Commission to be highly appreciated by visitors.

In addition, the school built an informatized foreign language study room and introduced a teaching method that enables students to learn easily with enjoyment by combining amusement games and study, and developed and applied various education support programs including the one for evaluating students’ abilities by using artificial intelligence.

The school has been appreciated as a nationwide model in achieving the target for making teaching contents and methods practicable, comprehensive and up-to-the-minute this year.

Children squarely compete in national festival, international stage

By Kil Chung Il PT

Choe Won Hung (six-year-old), Ro Ye Song (also six) and Song Ji Ye (five) of Changgwang Kindergarten presented their works to the second national festival of sculptures and handicrafts in celebration of the 73rd anniversary of the DPRK last September.

The works of young prodigies drew the attention of many visitors at the venue of the festival participated in by prestigious artists, experts and fans.

Choe brought out coloured-clay handicrafts, while Ro and Song presented embroidery works.

Their works were readily unbelievable to be made by children as they gave a vivid and deep portrayal of their pleasant life in the kindergarten and the scenes of pictorial book.

The coloured-clay handicraft depicting different children tastily drinking sour milk seem as if their laughter is heard, and the bread on the table is so lifelike that it seems to give off savoury smell. And in the other handicraft, the appearance of those picking a huge radish by joining efforts, including a grandpa, grandma and puppy, elicits the laughter of viewers.

In the meantime, Ro and Song decorated the background of their embroideries with subdued and well-balanced colours and promoted the characteristics of the “king’s van” coming to the kindergarten every day, loaded with sour milk, the fruits they eat at the snack time and the flowers in the kindergarten’s flower garden using diverse embroidery techniques.

They all study at the art group of the kindergarten.

“We find out children with gifted talents for painting to teach them how to draw and do coloured-clay handicrafts and embroidery at the art group. Choe, Ro and Song have all unusual temperament and character,” said Jong Yong Ae, teacher in charge of the group.

Jong, who have trained lots of talented children for nearly 20 years, got Choe, who likes to often draw something, to lay the foundation of art as she instructed embroidery to Ro and Song, who have good faculty of observation, are precise and have steady character.

As if taking after his artist father, Won Hung drew pictures of everything he saw and once he started to draw, he would keep drawing for hours.

In a little over a year since he enrolled at the group, he readily sketches any features and excels in coloured-clay handicrafts.

His crayon painting “Playing at doctors” came third at the recent seventh Asian children’s picture exhibition.

Ro and Song also acquired many embroidery techniques as well as painting skills under the guidance of their teacher Jong. According to her, the former’s style is featured by the delicate reflection of objects while the latter’s style by sincere and correct depiction.

Opera highlights significance of war victory

Opera impressively depicts the heroic feats of coast artillerymen on Wolmi Island etched in history of the country

By Ri Myong Jun PT

This year, the Phibada Opera Troupe produced the opera “Eternal Victors” on the theme of heroic feats performed by the coast artillerymen on Wolmi Island during the Fatherland Liberation War.

The opera was staged at the Pyongyang Grand Theatre from October 27 to November 28, drawing the deep interest of the audience.

It depicts in a historic picture the unyielding struggle of the artillerymen who defended Wolmi Island, an island of the country, for three days against a 50 000-strong force of the US imperialists boasting about their “mightiness” during the Korean war and thus rendered great services to hastening victory in the war.

The work raises a serious socio-political question how ordinary soldiers could bravely fight against the strong aggressive forces that had never been defeated and answers it through truthful and profound depiction.

It gives the impressive portrayal of Yong Ok, a young radio operator who was dispatched to the island and fought fierce battles together with officers and men of a coast artillery battery before understanding what they held dearer than their own lives.

Always remembering the days of happy lives they enjoyed in the embrace of General Kim Il Sung for five years after Korea’s liberation, the coast artillerymen fight bravely for it, fully charged with a readiness to lay down their lives for it. The people in the southern part of Korea help them carry shells to the battery with the DPRK flag in the breast of their clothes as they keenly realize how grateful the DPRK’s popular policies are after being liberated by the Korean People’s Army.

Yong Ok, who sets it as the target of her life to live and fight like the coast artillerymen on Wolmi Island who display unrivalled bravery with ardent love for their country, finally succeeds in connecting the communication line cut by shelling, although badly injured, and dies a heroic death.

The artillerymen, who are absolutely convinced that the embrace of General Kim Il Sung is just that of the DPRK, go out for the last do-or-die battle, holding high the flag of the DPRK and singing Song of General Kim Il Sung.

By vividly depicting the heroic feats of the coast artillerymen on Wolmi Island etched in the history of the DPRK, the opera proves that the victory achieved by the victorious wartime generation by dint of indomitable fighting spirit is very costly and their feats serve as an inexhaustible source of power ensuring new victories and miracles for all ages.

“We have improved the ideological and artistic influence of the opera by properly applying verse-songs and pangchang (off-stage song) to fully show the inner world of the hero and other characters and also the three-dimensional stage art across a revolving stage and introduced advanced technologies into stage settings to give a lifelike portrayal of fierce battle scenes,” said director Chae Myong Sok.

New stunts added to acrobatic show

By Kim Kum Myong PT

A performance given by the acrobats of the National Circus at the Pyongyang Circus Theatre located in the centre of Kwangbok Street in the capital city of Pyongyang is enthusiastically acclaimed by the audience.

“As it is winter now, we included many physical stunts on the ice in the programme,” said relevant official Ri Thae Gum.

The acrobats in national costumes perform different physical stunts on the ice to the tune of cheerful music, gripping the audience from the beginning.

They flaunt their skills in such pieces as ring whirling, dish feat and polygonal club whirling.

Comic actors performing such pieces as “Together with a guest” and “Sham feats” make the audience burst out laughing with remarkable skills and humorous representations.

Physical stunt “Horizontal bar and flying from a swing” marks the climax of the performance.

According to director Sin Un Sop, the stunt has been staged more than 12 000 times since it was created in 2003 and received four gold prizes at different international circus festivals including those held in Spain and Russia in 2014 and 2015.

Spectators watched Merited Artist Kwon Jong Hyok doing a quintuple somersault after flying high from a floating swing, a superb stunt, with bated suspense and gave a big hand to him.

Ju Kyong Su, performer of another physical stunt “Handstand perching”, piled up 50-cm-long iron bars in seven tiers as he executed various thrilling movements.

Doing a handstand while moving the iron bars from side to side at the height of eight metres forms the climax of the stunt.

“The entertainer did a handstand on iron bars swaying at almost a right angle without even a safety rope. It was really a cliff-hanger,” said a spectator named Choe Yon Hwa.

“I am very delighted and have been relieved of fatigue as I enjoyed the acrobatic performance together with my colleagues after work. Especially, I could hardly suppress a strong impulse to ride a horse as I saw the trainers bravely perform difficult stunts on horseback. The acrobatic performance was really impressive as it brought us great pleasure and optimism,” said Han Song Jun, worker at the Pyongyang General Electric Cable Factory 326.

EU’S ‘HUMAN RIGHTS’ RACKET DOOMED TO DENUNCIATION AND REJECTION

By Ri Sang Rim

On December 6, the European Union staged a farce of extending for another one year the “human rights sanctions” measures which it had imposed in March this year against the individuals and entities of six countries including the DPRK, China and Russia.

The EU’s “human rights sanctions” racket, which has nothing to do with protection and promotion of genuine human rights, is indeed a politically-motivated smear campaign targeting the countries which EU views as having different “values” from them.

What is actually shocking the world is the human rights violations such as racial discrimination, maltreatment of refugees, police violence, and sexual assaults occurring on a daily basis in the EU member states which are advocating “freedom”, “equality” and “democracy”.

It is the height of falsity and hypocrisy that these countries make a fuss, blindly picking on the human rights situations of other countries, far from paying heed to the severe human rights situations at their homes.

The smear campaign the EU is staging by tocing the line of the United States is only prompting soaring indignation of the Korean people as it is aimed at tarnishing the image of their state under the ripped signboard of human rights.

In the DPRK, the people-first principle is thoroughly embodied in all fields of social life as the cornerstone of its state activities and the people’s dignity, rights and interests are given the highest and absolute priority institutionally, legally and practically.

I take this opportunity to reiterate our strong denunciation and categorical rejection of the EU’s farce of extending “human rights sanctions” as an extension of hackneyed policy hostile to our country and a despicable political provocation aimed at violating our national sovereignty and interfering in our internal affairs.

The European Union should keep in mind that its reckless “human rights” racket targeting the countries of its dislike is doomed to denunciation and rejection from the international community.

An ideal socialist town built by dint of single-hearted unity

Kang Myong Hup
PhD, associate professor and section chief of the Academy of Social Sciences

The City of Samjiyon has turned into a model of modern socialist mountainous town and the standard of rural development.

It is the first village at the foot of Mt Paektu, sacred place and cradle of the Korean revolution, as well as a place dear to the hearts of all the Korean people as it is where the native home of Chairman Kim Jong Il is located.

The Workers’ Party of Korea worked out a plan for giving a complete facelift to the city in line with the requirements of the times on the historic march in the new century of the Juche era.

It is the intention of the WPK to turn the place into an ideal socialist land of the people symbolizing the standard of civilization in the era of the Workers’ Party and give a total facelift to the whole country with it as a spark.

The construction of the city was a worthwhile and honourable undertaking for further cementing the feeling of attachment to the Chairman cherished by the Korean people who have spent every day and every month with yearning for him.

Among the volunteers who came to its construction site, there were whole family members, couples, fathers and sons or daughters, mothers and sons or daughters, twins and sisters. Not only those builders but all other people across the country dedicated pure conscience to the undertaking for sprucing up his birthplace.

Though the imperialists have gone to extremes in their moves to stifle the DPRK and manifold trials and hardships blocked their way at every step, they continued construction without a moment’s letup while overcoming severe cold and other unfavourable conditions as they regarded the construction of the city as a fierce political struggle to defend the dignity and authority of the WPK.

That’s why the Korean people say that the sea change made in Samjiyon is the outcome of their firm intention to hasten the bright future of socialism as early as possible by dint of single-hearted unity.

Today, they further harden their will to build a powerful socialist country without fail on the strength of single-hearted unity.

The construction of the City of Samjiyon showing a sharp contrast between the past and present looks of the mountainous town can be said to be the first step in the gigantic struggle to provide a springboard for the overall development of socialist construction and open up a broad avenue for building a powerful country.

It is an American-style gangsterlike logic of calling black white.

This betrays the false and deceptive nature of the acts of the US which has been professing itself to be a “nuclear non-proliferation supervisor”, persistently finding fault with other countries’ rights to peaceful nuclear development. It also lays bare the hegemonic arbitrariness of the US which takes no account of international laws or the global concerns for the pursuit of its own interest.

It is not surprising therefore that even American experts confessed that the sale of nuclear submarine carries a great risk of proliferation. They also commented that the US, which is said to stand in the forefront of non-proliferation, continues to bypass the principles and regulations of non-proliferation under the pretext of helping its allies, and this is effecting an erosion of the international order which the current US administration claims it defends.

If the US persistently pursues nuclear proliferation by prioritizing only its own interests and those of its allies, it will never be able to get rid of the stigma as the chief culprit who has undermined the international regime of nuclear non-proliferation and destroyer of global peace and security.

OPINION

US State Department’s argument on ‘AUKUS’ unfounded

The Korea-Asia Association

On November 29, the Korea-Asia Association released an article to sound a warning against the attempts of the United States and its vassal forces to bring dark clouds of nuclear war over the planet by leveraging “AUKUS”.

Responding to this article, an official from the spokesperson’s office of the US State Department made lame excuses to justify “AUKUS” on December 2, saying that they are not talking about the nuclear-armed submarine, but it is just conventional nuclear-powered submarine. He also made nonsensical remarks that they will start transferring the technology for building a nuclear-powered submarine in a way of reflecting its long-standing leadership in global non-proliferation and rigorous verification standard.

This is an open challenge to the international society which is voicing serious concern by stating that it is an “irresponsible act of abandoning regulations and obligations for nuclear non-proliferation” and “manifestation of double standard with a high degree of Cold War mentality”.

The Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons stipulates, inter alia, that equipment or material especially designed or prepared for the processing, use or production of special fissionable material should not be provided to any non-nuclear weapon state. And over 90 % of the American and British nuclear submarines use the weapons-grade highly enriched uranium as their fuel. Given all the above facts, it is indeed an absurd logic to argue that the transfer of technology for building “conventional nuclear-powered submarine” does not run counter to the provisions of NPT.

It is an American-style gangsterlike logic of calling black white.

This betrays the false and deceptive nature of the acts of the US which has been professing itself to be a “nuclear non-proliferation supervisor”, persistently finding fault with other countries’ rights to peaceful nuclear development. It also lays bare the hegemonic arbitrariness of the US which takes no account of international laws or the global concerns for the pursuit of its own interest.

It is not surprising therefore that even American experts confessed that the sale of nuclear submarine carries a great risk of proliferation. They also commented that the US, which is said to stand in the forefront of non-proliferation, continues to bypass the principles and regulations of non-proliferation under the pretext of helping its allies, and this is effecting an erosion of the international order which the current US administration claims it defends.

If the US persistently pursues nuclear proliferation by prioritizing only its own interests and those of its allies, it will never be able to get rid of the stigma as the chief culprit who has undermined the international regime of nuclear non-proliferation and destroyer of global peace and security.

The United States can never escape a stern judgment of the international community, whatever tricks it employs to cover up its sinister intention.

Harping on about ‘emergency’: what does it aim for?

By Kim Il Chol

Not long ago, Abe, former prime minister of Japan, asserted that “emergency in Taiwan is the same as the emergency in Japan and that of the Japan-US alliance”.

We are no longer stranger to the word “emergency” often ringing out from the island country.

It is already well known that during Abe’s term of office Japan frequently waged joint military exercises together with the US on the pretext of coping with “emergency” on the Korean peninsula, continued to increase its “defense expenses” and stepped up the work to put the “Self-Defense Forces” into actual service and on a modern basis in such new domains as outer space and cyberspace.

This gives a visual proof of how dangerous a stage the Japanese reactionaries have reached in their scheme to disturb peace and stability on the Korean peninsula and realize its old dream of the “Greater East Asia Co-prosperity Sphere” with the help of its master.

But the point at issue now is that Abe, who stepped down from prime ministership, is giving the revival of militarism and reinvasion scheme a shot in the arm while attaching the expression “emergency” without discretion to even the Taiwan issue which belongs to the internal affairs of China.

Referring to this issue, the assistant to the Minister of Foreign Affairs of China and the spokesperson for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of China said that Japan, which committed a war crime of invading China in the past, does not have any qualification to say this and that about the Taiwan issue and that if anyone dares to follow in the same wake of militarism and challenge the limiting line set by the Chinese people, he or she is bound to suffer a crushing defeat.

Chinese newspaper Global Times also underlined in its comment the fact that Japan is one of the countries with the weakest strategic independence in Asia and it should not harbor any expectation that it could pursue a hardline policy against China on the strength of the US.

As the whole world sees, Japan is again in a fit of inveterate bad habit of blindly following the US, serving it like the godfather, just at this time when confrontation has grown ever worse between China and the US over the Taiwan issue.

Suga, former Prime Minister of Japan, during his trip to the US in April this year, put Taiwan within the range of application of the US-Japan Security Treaty, chiming in with the US in its criticism against China. Japan fanned up the theory of threat from China in the Diplomatic Blue Paper and the Defense White Paper published in 2021. High-ranking officials of Japan including the Deputy Prime Minister and the Defense Minister gave a spate of belligerent remarks that Japan should join the US in protecting Taiwan from the aggression by China.

Besides this, Japan already agreed to deploy interceptor missile units on the islets located near Taiwan. It is also trying to increase its cooperation with Taiwan by encouraging security dialogue between the Liberal Democratic Party of Japan and the Democratic Progressive Party of Taiwan and even discussing the issue of dispatching naval warships to the waters off Taiwan.

Against this backdrop, Abe asserted that emergency in Taiwan is the same as the emergency in Japan and that of the Japan-US alliance. This does not simply reflect his personal view. It fully reveals the policy of submission toward the US and confrontation toward China pursued by the current Japanese authorities as well as the cunning intentions of the militarist descendants to open up the road of realizing its ambition for overseas reinvasion.

The revival of militarism and overseas reinvasion by Japan are only a matter of time and there is no guarantee that the same nightmare of bloody slaughter and plunder as in the first half of the 20th century will not rear its ugly head again in Asia.

If they really want peace and prosperity in Asia, the countries of the region and the rest of the world should closely watch the frantic attempts of the Japanese reactionaries to realize their wild dream of overseas expansion.

US campuses ringing with gunshots, instead of bell

Gunshots are ringing louder than the sound of bell at schools in the United States, causing uneasiness and apprehension among people.

On February 14 2018, 17 people were shot dead at a senior high school in Florida. With this appalling incident as a momentum, there has been an increasing demand for amending Gun Control Act, but the gun-related crimes are on the constant rise.

On October 6 2021, an 18-year-old student sprayed bullets to wound four other students during a tussle in the classroom of a senior high school in Dallas, Texas. He ran away by car but was arrested by police. On October 12, there was another gunshot incident at a senior high school in Chicago, Illinois.

On November 30, a tragic incident happened at a senior high school in Michigan where a 15-year-old student brought his father’s rifle from home and sprayed bullets to kill four people, injuring several others.

According to statistics, the number of deaths caused by gun-related crimes in the US has reached 39 892 (1 345 minors among them) this year as of November 21, an all-time high in the last 20 years.

An American civil organization that specializes in ensuring campus safety announced that 30 gun-related crimes have been committed within campuses in the US from August 1 to early October, expressing concern that this year would be the most dangerous year for the students according to the surveys conducted from 2013.

Students do not scruple to shoot their schoolmates and even their teachers at the schools where the future of the country is brought up. This is the tragedy that can be seen only in the US where extreme hate and individualism are widespread.

Diplomatic dispute that cannot be easily settled

PROVIDED TO THE PYONGYANG TIMES

The US is aggravating the diplomatic dispute with Russia by greatly reducing the number of Russian diplomats in the country.

Recently, the US State Department made an official request to Russia to let its 27 diplomats and staff members of the Russian Embassy in Washington DC leave the US by January next year without any apposite reason. It also announced that it expects to take an additional step to let 20-odd staff members of the Russian Embassy leave the country by June next year.

In this connection, the Russian Foreign Minister strongly denounced the US, saying that it is applying sanctions to Russia which go against the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations.

The Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs and the spokesperson for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Russia expressed the stand to take countermeasures against the US hostile act, saying that they regard the US demand this time as the measure of expulsion and that Russia will also impose corresponding sanctions on the US diplomats in Russia.

According to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Russia, the US fixed the length of stay in the US for the diplomats of other countries for five years, but has limited it to three years for the Russian diplomats and refused to extend it and issue visas for their family members since last year. In this way, the Russian foreign ministry said, it is creating obstacles to the work and lives of the Russian diplomats.

The US tried to make an excuse saying that it had only called on the Russian diplomats whose duration of stay had expired to leave it, but it had never expelled them. But nothing can cover up its sinister intention to impair the external image of Russia and to create an atmosphere of isolating and putting pressure on Russia with its successive measures of expelling Russian diplomats.

The diplomatic dispute between Russia and the US has not started only yesterday.

Typical examples of this are the expulsion of more than 30 Russian diplomats in 2016 by the Obama administration with an allegation that Russia intervened in the US presidential election and that of 60 Russian diplomats by the Trump administration in 2018 on the pretext of attempted assassination of a former Russian secret agent in the UK, prompting Russia’s counteraction to it.

As long as the US, which ignores even the elementary diplomatic practices and international law to attain its objectives, continues to stick to its policy hostile to Russia, the diplomatic dispute between the two countries can’t be easily settled and it will spark due backlash from Russia.

China FM spokesman censures West’s human rights abuse

A spokesman for the Chinese Foreign Ministry censured the West for its human rights violation at a press conference on December 10.

They have pretended not to hear institutional racism and racial discrimination that exist in history and reality and, worse still, imposed sanctions on other countries on the pretext of “human rights” and started war, he denounced.

This is a typical expression of double standards, he said, adding that no one is qualified to style itself “human rights judge” and interfere in other countries’ internal issues while wielding “human rights stick”.

Cuba Efforts for increased electricity production

Cuba puts big efforts into increasing the production of electricity.

Despite the lack of parts of and materials for generating equipment, it is striving to recover its thermal power generating capacity and especially speeding up the repair of a thermal power plant which takes the lion’s share of electricity production.

It is also pressing on with the repair and maintenance of electric power grids across the country.

Iran Striving for navy buildup

Iran is directing efforts to building up its naval force.

The navy of the Iranian Islamic Revolution Guards Corps on December 11 took over 110 home-made high-speed attack boats.

Equipped with missile launchers, the attack boats have great mobility and are reportedly to be used in operations for coping with the enemy’s potential threats in the waters of the Persian Gulf and the Gulf of Oman.

Japan Protest against US military base building

Residents in Japan’s Okinawa Prefecture recently held a rally in protest against the establishment of a US military base.

Hundreds of Japanese people attended the rally that was held nearly three years after the earth and sand piling work began for the construction of a US air force base in the sea off Henoko of Nago City.

Songi mushroom seen through national classics

By Ri Myong Jun PT

Various kinds of mushrooms that are good for human health grow in Korea which has been called a land as beautiful as golden tapestry as it has been blessed with spectacular mountains and clear rivers since ancient times.

The fact about the use of mushrooms in the Koreans' dietary life is found in the historical records from the period of the Three Kingdoms (3rd century BC-AD mid-7th century). According to Samguksagi (Chronicles of the Three Kingdoms), mushrooms were presented to royal courts as tributes in the early 8th century.

In the period of Koryo Kingdom (918-1392), various mushrooms including songi mushroom and Lentinus edodes were widely used as subsidiary foods and Koryo medicinal materials and songi mushroom was regarded as the best.

More detailed accounts of songi mushroom are found many times in the records from the period of feudal Joseon dynasty (1392-1910).

The historical records introduce the soup, roast, boiled rice and other foods prepared with songi mushroom as the main material.

It was also widely used as medicinal material in people's life.

"Demand for songi mushroom with clear anti-cancer and ageing-retarding effects is on the rise. We work to protect and propagate this mushroom and improve its processing techniques in order to use it in the people's dietary life and medical treatment," said Ri Kuk Song, department chief of the Central Mushroom Research Institute of the Ministry of Agriculture.

Korean tiger, living monument

By Kwon Hyo Song PT

Tiger is one of animals attracting the attention of people mostly. Because it is called the "king" of all animals and the symbol of swiftness and valour.

Since ancient times, those who are valiant and nimble have been called "generals as ferocious as a tiger" and "men as intrepid as a tiger".

It is now under international protection as its breeding coefficient is not so high and its number dwindles day by day due to the reduction of thick forests and poaching.

It belongs to a largest fierce animal in the cat family. Its size and fur colour and length vary according to its distribution areas and it is divided into several subspecies including Korean, Siberian and Iranian tigers.

Among them, Korean tiger is bigger, nimbler and more intrepid than other subspecies and is noted for its graceful fur pattern.

It has a comparatively big build (its body length is 2.5m long, body weight is 100-306kg and its tail length is 95cm long), its back is yellowish brown and the belly and inner part of four legs are white. There are 24 black lines on its back and five on the belly and eight black patterns are seen on tail.

Unlike other subspecies, it has an outstanding black pattern of "king" in Chinese character on its forehead. This is the external feature of the Korean tiger.

Korean tiger spread widely across the country, from northern alpine areas to South

Jolla Province, but now its traces are only found in northern high mountain areas.

The Korean tigers

inhabiting Tachongdan County and Samjiyon City in Ryanggang Province have been nominated as natural living monument "Korean tiger on Mt Packtu" and they are under good protection.
